Focus on the Print

November 3 - December 23, 2011 / Opening Reception: Thursday, November 3, 5-7pm

Since ancient times the urge to replicate images has been a goal of artists. Before the invention of the printing press methods were invented to duplicate artwork, such as cast seals and relief carvings. They were often used to disseminate information, religious, political, and cultural, to the masses. As artists became involved in the pursuit of what has been called the "democratic" form of art, interest in multiples as discipline distinct from painting or drawing began to emerge. Some artists were inspired by process, from woodcuts to etchings. Manipulating the image by invention and design became central to the process. With the advent of computer prints the lines between craftsmanship and the mechanical have been blurred. But traditional methods continue to interest artists, and many artists now merge the digital with other methods. Conversely, a recent development in printmaking has been the monoprint, the technique of using printmaking techniques to produce a single work of art, where spontaneous invention and gestural markings are central to the process.

During November and December, a group of galleries from Charlottesville to Orange, along the Route 20N corridor, will host a "Focus on the Print," featuring the work of regional printmakers. The combined exhibits will represent all forms of contemporary printmaking, from experimental to traditional.

The Morin Gallery at The Arts Center In Orange will feature a group show of artists from the DC area Washington Printmakers Gallery, whose foundation promotes fine-art printmaking by fostering the creation and appreciation of hand-pulled, artist-made prints.

Just north of Orange is Woodberry Forest School, where the school's Baker Art Gallery is featuring "Six Printmakers," including Kelly Lonergan, who teaches art at Woodberry and curated the show, Dennis Winston of Richmond, and Russell Richards of Charlottesville, whose works represent a variety of printmaking methods and materials. The exhibition will run from November 1st through December 18th.

In Barboursville, Frederick Nichols Studio will be having a mini-retrospective covering 35 years of Nichols' printmaking career during November and December. Tours of the studio will be offered. Nichols Gallery Annex will feature prints by ten artists from around the region, including silkscreens by Ed Bordett of Roanoke and Lou Stovall of Washington, DC, monoprints by Frank Hobbs and David Freed of Richmond, and digital collages by Charlottesville artist McCrea Kudravetz.

On the Downtown Mall in Charlottesville, Chroma Projects Art Lab will feature Charlottesville artist Rosamond Casey during the month of November and recent work by Richmond Printmakers' One/Off group in December. Second Street Gallery, also on the Downtown Mall, and Les Yeux du Monde Gallery on Rt 20, just North of Charlottesville, are collaborating on a major 25 year survey of the art of Dean Dass, professor of printmaking at UVA. The exhibition will open at LYDM on Nov 18 and at Second Street Gallery on the First Friday in December.

For information regarding individual gallery hours, exhibition dates, openings, and special events, visit our blog at www.focusonprint.com.

Kids Work for ART!

On August 18th the kids from The Boys & Girls Club of Orange who participate in the Arts Center's Community Outreach art lessons raised over $1,500 to divide between their club and the Outreach program. They did this by holding an exhibit and sale in the Morin Gallery of the paintings, drawings, sculpture, jewelry, decorative bird houses and painted silks they had worked to create over the past year. A few pieces remain for sale in the Arts Center's classroom.

Also in August, 8th grader Emmet Aylor singlehandedly raised $300 for The Arts Center's Community Outreach by selling baked goods at the Somerset Steam and Gas Pasture Party.

The Arts Center In Orange Community Outreach program acts as a hub, providing grant funded fine arts instruction at dozens of locations throughout Orange, Madison and Culpepper counties as well as support to Orange County

Public Schools, serving audiences from age 2 (Early Head Start) to 102 (Dogwood Village of Orange). With economic conditions what they are, grant funding for the program is threatened. The combined total raised by these young philanthropists amounts to nearly 10% of the program's annual budget, and comes at a very good time!

Club & Guild Meetings at the AC

These gatherings are FREE, all are welcome! Phone 672-7311 for more information.

Orange Photography Collective - The Orange Photography Collective has been meeting at the Orange Arts Center for the past three years under the name Photo Club. However, with a multi-exhibit show sponsored by Reynolds Subaru coming up in March 2012, the group thought Photography Collective had a more elegant ring. Members continue to bring in pictures to share and discuss. Monthly meetings on the third Monday at 7:00 pm usually begin with a look at the work of a well known photographer. In September, for example, French photographer Robert Doisneau was the subject. Bring 5-6 prints to each meeting

Lazy Kates Spinsters Guild - Wednesdays, 1-5pm, <http://twitter.com/lazykates>

Open Studio - The Arts Center classroom and clay studio are available for individuals and groups during non-class hours. Charges may apply to purchase clay and have equipment, glaze and kiln privileges.

The Great Antique & Glorious Art (GAGA) Gala

The Arts Center In Orange is a nonprofit community arts center with a mission to increase the quality of life in our community by promoting an appreciation for fine contemporary arts in diverse styles and ideologies. This is done by providing: a forum to promote artistic excellence; scholarship and education; a venue for artists and artisans to work, teach, exhibit and sell work; and a place for the community to learn skills, and to participate in and enjoy the arts.

For their continued support, we thank the Town of Orange,
Orange County, and the Virginia Commission for the Arts.
